Peace and Conflict: A brief Study

Dr. Vishal Kr Sharma

Abstract
Relationship between culture, conflict and peace share thoughts on the role of cultural initiatives in building peace, and some of the good practices. Suggestions for a possible EU-Japan cooperation.

Keywords: Peace and Conflict, Relationship, culture

Introduction
In the 21st century, peace is more than no war. Johan Galtung’s definition: negative peace (no violence or war) + structural peace + positive peace.

My definition
Well-being of people free from violence.

What is Culture?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Peace, well-being</th>
<th>Identity</th>
<th>Way of Thinking</th>
<th>Way of Life</th>
<th>Religion</th>
<th>Cinema</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sport</td>
<td>Art</td>
<td>Literature</td>
<td>Dance</td>
<td>Music</td>
<td>Theatre</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Educational (+vocational)</td>
<td>Confidence building</td>
<td>Integration,</td>
<td>Reconciliation</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Does Culture Trigger Conflict?
The clash of Civilizations’ by Samuel Huntington. Post -9/11 debate: cultural differences trigger conflict. Cultural differences don’t cause conflict, but with political/economic motives may do so culture for conflict; Nazis used music to induce war, Music is used in Africa and Asia to prepare children for fighting.

Culture alone does not cause conflict. Cultural differences combined with political/economic motives can cause and escalate conflict. On the other hand, culture can be useful for peace-building.

Research Hypothesis
Culture alone cannot prevent, end or resolve conflict. Political, security, economic means are necessary for peace, but not sufficient to ensure lasting peace- thus many recurring conflicts. When culture is included, it can help prevent and solve conflicts, reconstruct post-conflict societies for sustainable peace, and reduce the number of recurring wars.

Good Practices
During Confrontation, Peace Picture Books – The ICLC The International Centre for Literacy and Culture (funded by the Japan Foundation and supported by UNICEF) artists and child education experts from India, Pakistan, Nepal and Japan to Katmandu to create picture books. Seven books were jointly produced in Urdu, Hindi and other languages. The stories relate the benefits of ceasing to fight and working on a common goal. The collaboration helped promote mutual understanding. Good Practices: During Conflicts Art for Peace – Peace Winds Japan
Objectives
Support Kurdish artists, promote peace and exchange, boost understanding of peace by easing fear of the military border. Ten artists painted pictures expressing their ideas about peace on rock faces, created peace symbols in a plaza, and painted a former checkpoint, making it a symbol of peace. Checkpoint soldiers joined in the painting. Provided stimulation and networks; the area is now a people’s park. Artists and visitors sense an aura of peace. Good Practices: During Post Conflict Peace-keeping Manga Stickers & Water Tanks – JSDF When hostilities end, troops are sent to keep peace, help in reconstruction and distribute humanitarian aid. The troops are often feared, but culture can help heal local distrust. Japan Self-Defense Force troops, deployed to Iraq to distribute water, placed anime character Captain Tsubasa (Captain Masjid there) stickers on their water tanks. The children’s reduced fear had an impact on the community. Good Practices: During Post –Conflict Peace –keeping Drama Workshop in Aceh The JF drama workshop catered for 30 children with no contact with peers in other areas. The aim: care of traumatized Children. The program encouraged cooperation so the children could open their minds and begin to think of the future. The process of mutual understanding was born through activities: writing scripts, music, lyrics; making the sets. The groups gradually understood that ‘the enemy’ had also suffered and been victimized.

Cultural Initiatives in Peace Building

PEACETIME
Objectives: Make individuals and communities able to resist adverse effects of conflict.
Functions: Build confidence, capacity
Activities: Cultural exchanges concerts, etc.

DURING CONFORMATION
Objective: Coexistence
Functions: Confidence building to ease conformation; neutralize and resolve confrontation; neutralize and resolve conformation (encourage mutual understanding, build tolerance and trust); seek to integrate communities.
Activity: Publish picture books, support libraries.

DURING CONFLICT
Objective: Cushion shock of conflict survivors
Functions: Tackle feeling of loneliness, hopelessness; give concern of international community; give hope try to reduce stress of those experiencing conflict; show the world the inhumanity of conflict areas.
Activity: Theatre, exhibits, firm making and other pursuits.

POST-CONFLICT PEACEKEEPING
Objective: Peaceful Coexistence
Functions: use culture as catalyst for accepting aid teams; heal trauma; reintegrate into local community those isolated by conflict (ex-soldiers, gang members)
Activity: Sport, cultural pursuits, animation, vocational training etc.

POST-CONFLICT RECONSTRUCTION
Objective: Encourage cooperation among conflict survivors
Functions: Build trust; integrate conflict participants; have therapy for those affected by conflict; build confidence; support democratization; build hope; rebuild identities
Activity: Multi-ethnic orchestras, art workshops, support resuming traditional handicrafts etc.

POST-CONFLOCT PEACE CONSOLIDATION
Objective: Mutual empowerment
Functions: Reconciliation among conflict parties, multi-cultural coexistence.
Activity: Promote self-expression, cultural exchange, education aimed at ethnic reconciliation and consistency; network etc.

Good Practices
During Post- Conflict Reconstruction A Multi-ethnic Orchestra Before the war, Pristina had an integrated orchestra of Serbs, Albanians, and Croats. Since the war, it comprises only Albanians. Mr. Toshio Yanagisawa, conductor of the Kosovo Philharmonic, formed the multi-ethnic Balkan Chamber Orchestra with musicians from conflict regions.
The Japan Foundation supports the project that aims to integrate ethnic groups from the former Yugoslavia. Good Practices: During Post –Conflict Reconstruction Traditional handicrafts (Japan Foundation) A team was sent to Istawif, a village in Afghanistan known for its ceramics. The kilns had been destroyed by the Taliban. Potters from Istalif were invited to Japan for training. As they worked at their wheels, the Afghan potters recalled the Istawif ceramic tradition and regained confidence. After returning home, they again made pottery and created new designs. They reopened shops with a view to earning an income. A network developed between the Japanese and Afghan Potters, as well as potters who visit Japan from other counties.
Good Practices: During Post – Conflict Reconstruction Roadside Theater (Save the Children Japan) Roadside theatre in Bamiyan, Afghanistan, highlighted the importance of education.

Goal
Increase the number of children going to school. Youths put together their own groups write and perform their own scenarios. Performances are staged at schools and open village areas. The potpies are related to the daily lives of the people: appeals for school attendance, the importance of reading and writing.

Nexus between Peace and Culture
Nexus activities by international actors can be effective in peace-building if integrated with other measures. The activities enable: people in conflict areas to build new identities that tolerate, respect other cultures; people to experience multicultural coexistence, different cultural groups to work together and to create a future together.
Functions of culture for peace: Culture can be a catalyst and facilitator for social capital formation. (Robert Putnam, Making Democracy Work, 1993)
Culture can transform violence into peace. Cultural factors are important for peace-building.

Conclusion
Peace-building/conflict resolution is an area promising for EU and Japan to collaborate. In addition to cooperation in SSR, economic development etc, there is a room on cultural initiatives, sharing good practices, theories and challenges. Possible EUNIC + Japan cooperation.
Reference