Social exclusion: Impact on dalits in India

Suman Rani

Abstract
In the post-reform period, India has done well in some indicators such as economic growth, exports, balance of payments stock market etc, but exclusion continued in terms of low agriculture growth, low quality employment growth, rural urban divide etc. Thus, social exclusion is taking place in terms of regions, social, women and children. “Social Exclusion” the term is very much in the field of intellectuals and policy planners for identifying the gaps for the development of the neglected people and the pertaining country. The causes for exclusion can vary from country to country in different times, but the results will be the same in the form of lack of people development and the country. Social Exclusion is a process which involves denial of rights and opportunities which the majority enjoy, resulting in the inability of individuals from excluded groups to participate in the basic political, economic and social functioning of the society. Social Exclusion or Social marginalization is social disadvantage and regulation to the fringe of society. The objective of this study is to know the impact of social exclusion on Dalits in India. The data for this study has been collected through secondary sources such journals, websites and other reliable sources. As a result of social exclusion, its impacts on the livelihood of the people such as increase in rate of poverty, health and others. The impact of exclusion has made the Dalits as vulnerable community since from the Vedic time. The process of social exclusion system had made the Dalits dependable on the others so called upper communities. In the contemporary scenario due to the impact of exclusion of Dalits they are subjected to social, economically and politically exclusion. The most affected population is Dalits who lag in all spheres of development activities.

Keywords: Social exclusion, dalits, community, marginalization

Introduction
“Social exclusion”-What do these two words mean? Why have they become popular in policy discourse in parts of the English speaking world? How and in what ways are they a contested concept? We can say that social exclusion is a contested term. Not only is it used to refer to a wide range of phenomena and processes related to poverty, deprivation and hardship but it is also used in relation to a wide range of categories of excluded of exclusion. Social exclusion is a multidimensional term. This is why it is bit difficult to define it in a precise manner. The term was initially coined in France in 1974 where it was defined as a rupture of social bonds. Later on it became the central theme of social policy in many European countries. As a broader framework of social policy, it was suggested that social exclusion is the process that excludes individuals, groups and aggregates from full participation in the society in which they live. It involves the lack of denial of resources, rights, goods and services and the inability to participate in the normal relationships and activities available to the majority of people in a society whether in economic, social, cultural or political areas. It affects both the quality of life of individuals and the equity and cohesion of society as a whole.

Concept of social exclusion:-Social exclusion is the denial of the basic welfare rights which provide citizens positive freedom to participate in the social and economic life and which thereby render meaningful their fundamental negative freedoms. Social exclusion is mainly a group concept. Amartya Sen say that the situation were some people are kept out and were some people are being included and describes two situations as unfavourable exclusion and unfavourable inclusion. The acts of exclusion which excludes social groups that are based on the recognized and accepted principles, rules, norms of fairness can be considered as unfair exclusion, similarly the inclusions which provide access and entitlement to persons from
3. Characteristics of Social Exclusion

(A) Economic/Structural Exclusion (Distributional dimension)
1. Material deprivation: Deficiencies in relation to basic needs and material goods, lifestyle deprivation, problematic debts, payment arrears.
2. Inadequate access to government and semi-government provisions (Social rights): Waiting lists, financial impediments and other obstacles to health care, education, housing, legal aid, social services, debt assistance, employment agencies, social security’s and certain commercial services such as banking and insurance.

(B) Socio-cultural exclusion (Relational dimension)
3. Insufficient social integration: A lack of participation in formal and informal social networks, including leisure activities inadequate social support, social isolation.
4. Insufficient cultural integration: A lack of compliance with core norms and values associated with active social citizenship indicated by weak work ethic, abuse of social security system, delinquent behaviour, and deviating views on the rights and duties of men and women, no involvement in local neighbourhood and society at large.

Types of Social Exclusion
1. Caste based: - The caste system is the based on the division of people in to social groups in which civil, cultural and economic rights of each individual cast are predetermined by birth and made hereditary. The caste at the top of social order enjoys more rights at the expense of those located at the bottom of the caste hierarchy and has fewer economic and social rights.
2. Untouchability based social exclusion: - The untouchables who are at the bottom of the caste hierarchy suffered the most from unequal assignments and entitlements of rights.

Exclusion is both a process and product. It involves mainly four components
1. The excluded.
2. The agents whose actions results in exclusion.
3. The institutions from which they are excluded.
4. The process through which it occurs.

4. Impact of Social Exclusion: Social Exclusion results in the following main consequences:-

1. Geographic Segregation: - It is generally observed that the so-called untouchables (Dalits) and even minorities are residentially segregated from the mainstream of the society. They are made to live and construct their residential places and dwellings outside the villages or at the periphery of village or town.
2. Intimidation: - It can be observed at every level in a society. It is a major form of control used by men over other men and women. Verbal abuse, sarcastic remarks, threat of harm is the main means of intimidation.
3. Physical violence: - When threat of harm does not work actual violence is used. It can be committed by the state, community, group or individuals. Violence against women in the household and poor people and ethnic and religious minorities is reported to be practised all over the world. Domestic violence is rooted in the norms of gender inequality and patriarchy.

4. Barriers to entry: At many places and in many spheres, people excluded are debarred from entry. Barriers to entry involving the state are mostly related to documentation requirements other than documents, transition costs is another way to put hurdle in the entry of the excluded.

5. Corruption: It is the main cause of many social evils in India and elsewhere. The people who are excluded from obtaining goods and services do not have the required necessary amount to pay for securing jobs, health care and other public services. It causes insecurity among the excluded. Corruption denies access to resources, opportunities and information.

6. Other Impacts
   1. It leads to various kinds of deprivations-economic, educational, cultural and social.
   2. It leads to impoverishment of human life and human life and develops a poorer sense of well being.
   3. It leads to inequality, poverty, unemployment and involuntary migration.
   4. It leads to social stigmatization and marginalization.
   5. It develops fear complex among the excluded.
   6. It puts various restrictions on the excluded about their free and full participation in the economic, cultural and political activities.
   7. On the whole, it puts on intense negative impact on the quality of life.

5. Conclusion: From the foregoing discussion it may concluded that the concept of social exclusion is a process of blocking the development of the marginalized communities and disintegrating people into mainstream of development, with a series of institutionalized social systems. The most affected population is Dalits who lag in all spheres of developmental activities. The impact of exclusion has made the Dalits as vulnerable community since from the Vedic time and dependable on the others so called upper communities. In the contemporary scenario due to the Impact of exclusion on Dalits they are subjected to social, economically and politically exclusion.

6. References
   12. Social Exclusion –Its types and impact on Davits in India www.iosrjournals.org 85 | Page